Enhanced Women's Specialty Services

The Problem

Maternal alcohol and substance use puts children at risk:

- Because of the possible effects of prenatal exposure on the health and development of the unborn child;
- Because of the likelihood of a compromised home environment

These problems are entirely preventable.

The Goals of EWSS

- To eliminate or reduce the use of alcohol or drugs.
- To promote the effective use of contraceptive methods.
- To teach mothers how to effectively use community-based services to meet the needs of themselves and their children.

“Parent advocates provide extensive practical assistance and the long-term emotional support so important to women who are making fundamental changes in their lives.”

The EWSS Approach

Specialty trained and supervised Parent advocates provide home visitation and community based intervention for up to 3 years. Advocates assist clients in;

- Setting goals and identify steps to achieve them
- Obtaining substance use disorder treatment
- Staying in recovery
- Choosing a family planning method
- Child health care/immunizations
- Connecting with community services
- Transportation to some appointments
- Solving housing, domestic violence, child custody problems
- Resolving system service barriers.
